Competition

If two opposing factions of a famous Kentucky feud sat down side by side and discussed mutual problems without there being bloodshed, practically all of the metropolitan newspapers would carry big headlines about the event.

If half a dozen real estate men gathered at a dinner a few years ago and held a discussion of their problems, the ambulance and police riot squad, would probably have been parked out on the curb.

But the world do move. Thursday night a large gathering of Contra Costa Real Estate men sat down to a big banquet in Richmond. Then they discussed mutual problems most important among them being that of elevating the standards of the real estate business.

It has often been remarked that every city of the size of Richmond could do nothing better to move the city ahead a few years than having a large number of funerals of real estate men. And probably at the time this statement was so popular, it was the truth.

Today however, the thing is a little different. In fact the difference is a great deal more than most people suspect. The real estate man who is going to hob nob with his brother competitor, work out a code of ethics and live up to that code of ethics is not going to do anything in transacting real estate deals that he would not be willing to have published in his paper the next morning.

There is no question about it, there was and still is in some places, much to be desired in the betterment of real estate transaction. With a live real estate organization at work cleaning house on those things that in the past have put the business in ill repute, those who wish to buy homes and invest in real estate will be able to draw a sigh of relief and one that will come from the bottom of their hearts.

Other business men would do well to investigate the objects of the real estate organizations and hold an organization similar to them. The old days of cut throat competition, have been thrown in the rag bag and they are going to remain there. Barnum was right when he made his statement that he now become world famous, and the man who thinks that he can build up his own business by unfair competition and shady methods, has his head on the block and doesn't know it.

CHARGES NOT DEFINITE

Full Staff of Prohibition Agents
Will Be Thrown Into Investigation

Government agencies united with the Coast Guard officials yesterday in investigating the reports the coast guard cutters are co-operating with the rum-runners in landing liquor along the California Coast.

Reports have been collected by the Internal Revenue Bureau of collusion between Coast Guard men and rum-runners. Each of these stories will be investigated thoroughly according to the authorities.

The full resources of the prohibition staff has been thrown into the inquiry by Colonel Ned M. Green. As soon as proof of any of the rumors is found the prosecuting agencies of the government will be thrown into action.

No definite charges have been made against the Coast Guard personnel by any officer. It was made clear yesterday but for the sake of both enforcement and the Coast Guard itself the inquiry has been conducted.

Some of the rumors which will be investigated were learned yesterday.

One of the questions is how the rum-runners have been able to land booze inside Golden Gate when two cutters are placed to keep them outside of it.

There has been reports from the Tomales Bay that the Coast guardsmen have a pre-arranged set of signals for communication between the rum-runners.

It is also reported that in this region the runners keep a gang of men to repair the roads between Tomales and Marshalls for their booze trucks.

Postmaster James N. Long announced yesterday that the time of collecting mail on Macdonald avenue had been changed from 4 p. m. until 5:40 p. m. to enable the merchants and the general public an additional hour and forty minutes in which to deposit mail. This will give assurance that it will be started toward its destination the same night.

A two-months vacation will be spent by Mrs. Edward McDuff in New York where she will visit with friends and relatives. She left Richmond yesterday morning.

FISHERMEN WIN IN STRIKE FOR HIGHER PRICES

The demand for 15 cents per pound for bass which has been demanded by fishermen will be met, according to officials of the five fish companies operating in Pittsburg. The fishermen will start operating under the new scale Sunday night. This has been done as a means of breaking the fishermen's strike, which began last Monday, when the companies cut the price from 12 to 10 cents per pound. There is not a season guarantee of that amount, however, even though the fishermen have been granted their demand of 15 cents per pound, and the price is subject to fluctuation caused by market conditions.

With a marked shortage in the Northern California fish market, and record for the first three weeks' catch of more than 238,000 pounds of bass, only 1000 pounds has landed on the docks in Pittsburg this week.

BIG BARGE AND FERRY COLLIDE IN UPPER BAY

VALLEJO, Dec. 11.—When two giant crafts crashed together in the upper bay early this morning the lives of more than 75 persons were imperiled and serious damage was inflicted on both vessels.

The Southern Pacific ferry boat, Garden City, making its last run from Vallejo junction to Vallejo crashed into a huge barge owned by the E. V. Rideout company of San Francisco, bound for that city with 40 tons of freight from the Mare Island navy yard and 20 tons of flour taken aboard at the Sperry Mill at South Vallejo.

A near panic resulted when the fifty passengers were thrown into confusion at the impact. Women shrieked and many passengers were thrown from their seats. The barge crew of ten men clung to sacks of flour and other cargo to keep from sliding into the water as the barge nearly capsized.

Listing from side to side as the two crafts struck and literally bounced apart from the impact, both were kept from capsizing by the skillful seamanship of their masters. The barge was lifted out of the water by the bow of the Garden City and dropped so abruptly that a part of the cargo was lost in the bay.

With a gaping hole in her side but above the waterline, the barge proceeded on its way to San Francisco. The Garden City reached Vallejo under her own power.

According to announcement made at the Navy headquarters at Mare Island, Captain Walter Irigoin, in charge of the barge, reported that the barge was enroute to San Francisco when suddenly the Garden City loomed in the dense fog, bearing down on the barge. Both Captains saw the other ship and Captain Robert Lockwood ordered the ferryboat's engines reversed but the impetus was too great to prevent the crash.

Defies League of Nations Ruling

LONDON, Dec. 11.—Reports received here today from Turkey indicate that President Mustapha Kemal Pasha, was preparing to use the armed forces of his country to prevent the acquisition of Mosul with its valuable oil fields by the British under a League of Nations council award. The council which has been considering the disputed boundaries of Iraq adjoining Mosul and already under British mandate is certain to award Mosul to Great Britain in the opinion of Mustapha Kemal and he is determined to contest such an award even to the extent of going to war.

U. S. Army Was Best Equipped Says General

That the United States armies in all wars were the best equipped, best trained and best disciplined in the world was pointed out last night by Brigadier-General Hunt, who was in command of the Sixth Brigade of the Third Division, A. E. F., while speaking before the Men's club of Wesley church last night.

General Hunt stated that the armies of this country have participated in 104 engagements and always with success. He also described a major management, the purpose of the army of occupation, and the training and disciplining of soldiers.

Fred Whittlesey entertained with piano selections. Wilbur Oakley was chairman of the evening and Frank Beebe presided in the absence of President Hunt Brown. The delicious dinner was served by Circle No. 4 of the Wesley Ladies Aid society.

Poppy Beds are Badly Treated Says Local Club

The ruin of the newly planted poppy beds along Cutting boulevard by being run over by automobiles was the topic of a discussion at the meeting of the West Side Progressive association in the Point Masonic temple last night. It was reported that cars are often parked on the beds and are stamping out the sprouting flowers.

It was resolved to send a communication to City Manager J. A. McVittie, asking that some ruling be made to save the flowers, which required so much hard work on the part of the local Boy Scouts in planting.

It was reported at the meeting that number of new homes are about to be erected on the West Side. President Emil Esola presided over the session.

MOVE TO MODESTO

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dalton and daughter, Virginia, 1601 Nevins avenue, have moved to Modesto, where they will make their future home. Dalton has been transferred there by the railroad for which he is working. Mrs. Dalton is well known in lodge and club circles in Richmond.

TO ENLARGE THE STAFF OF KEY SYSTEM HERE

Shorter hours granted the platform men on all Key System Transit company street cars will necessitate the employment of 23 new men on the northern division at Richmond. It was announced at the office here yesterday. The new hour ruling goes into effect the first of January, but the company is already breaking in new men. There will be 150 men working on the northern division cars at that time.

With the increase in wages and shorter hours for the employees of the Key System adding from $250,000 to $75,000 to the annual running expenses, a raise in street car fares may be inevitable. Leon Gray, city attorney of Oakland, admitted yesterday in making his answer to the supplemental application of the company to the state railroad commission for increased street car and ferry fares.

City Attorney D. J. Hall, of Richmond, declared that he would maintain his stand for two instead of three fares from Oakland to Richmond, despite the outcome of the supplemental report.

HALL AWAITS HIS SENTENCE

The fate of Floyd Hall, convicted slayer of Harry J. Litzberg, Sacramento merchant, probably will not be known before the end of this month, it was predicted today by Ray T. Coughlin, Sacramento attorney, who defended the youthful desperado.

Hall is now in Folsom prison, awaiting the outcome of the fight for his life in the State's highest court. He was a partner of Joe Tanko, escaped San Quentin convict, in a number of daring hold-ups in this region last spring. Tanko has not yet been captured.

Oakland Opposes Plans for Bridge Across the Bay

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 11.—At a public hearing here today at the city hall San Francisco's plan to bridge the bay was vehemently opposed by Major John W. N. Schultz, chief of the army corps of engineers for this district.

The City of Oakland is "unalterably opposed" to any bridge from San Francisco to any point between the Key Route mole and the Southern Pacific mole at Alameda. Schultz was informed by LeRoy Goodrich, commissioner of public works of Oakland.

The plan for a span from Telegraph Hill to Oakland, via Goat Island is the only one to which the Navy Department will lend approval was stated on behalf of the navy by Capt. C. W. Cole, chief of staff of the Twelfth naval district.

The hearty approval of the "bridge the bay" plan by the cities of Berkeley, Alameda and Crescent City partly offsets the opposition of Oakland and the Navy department.

A. D. Ledy, representing the chamber of commerce of Crescent City declared that the bridge plan has grown from a local problem to a national question.

Captain Cole analyzed each bridge plan closely except the plan of the span from Telegraph Hill to Oakland. Cole said this plan would be considered. He did not touch upon the proposed Golden Gate Bridge plan that has been approved by the War Department.

Spanish War Vet Auxiliary Names New Officials

Mrs. Bertha Spencer was last night elected to the office of president to preside over Admiral Dewey auxiliary to the United Spanish War Veterans, at the meeting held in Memorial hall. The staff of officers who will serve with Mrs. Spencer were elected as follows:

Mrs. Daisy Bell, senior vice-president; Esther Smith, junior vice-president; Lucille Kister, conductor; Anita Traneague, chaplain; Lettie Sassaman, guard; Eunice Curtis and Clara Bradshaw, assistant guards; Bell Campbell, patriotic instructor; Caroline Grow, historian.

Mrs. Kister, Mrs. Sassaman, Mrs. Grow and Mrs. Spencer were appointed as a committee to arrange for Christmas luncheon party on next Tuesday in Memorial hall. It was reported that plans are progressing in the auxiliary for the Christmas tree party for veteran organization members and their families on December 22.

As the date of the next regular meeting falls on Christmas, it was decided to cancel it. The next session will therefore be held on January 8, and at that time installation of officers will be held. President Mrs. Ruth Jungstrom presided over last night's meeting.

MITCHELL'S CHARGES ARE CONFIRMED

Foreign Aircraft, Maintained
Within Striking Distance Of The Canal

IS GERMAN-AUSTRO FIRM

Records of German Anti-Aircraft Guns Are Read Into The Records

(By Universal Service)

WASHINGTON, DEC. 11.—The contention of Colonel William Mitchell that foreign aircraft firms have secured a foothold in Central America "within striking distance of the Panama Canal" was substantiated by documentary evidence presented by Major George V. Strong.

The records produced by Strong shows that a German-Austro firm is now engaged in commercial flying in Central America.

Colonel Mitchell has charged that foreign interests have gained a foothold near the canal through the indifference and negligence of the War Department.

Treaties were being negotiated by the State Department to secure American air concessions in Central America, Major Strong, prosecuting witness, admitted.

German records were produced by Lieut.-Col. C. A. Bach, a war department translator, to show that anti-aircraft batteries took a heavy toll of allied aeroplanes. This document was read over the protest of Representative Frank R. Reade, Republican, of Illinois, Mitchell's counsel.

The German records claim that fifteen per cent of the allied planes were brought down or disabled by anti-aircraft guns.

Bach declared that 6,025 allied balloons and planes were wrecked by Germany up until September 1918, and 911 planes were brought down by the anti-aircraft defense.

Bach declared that these records were secured through an American military attaché at Berlin. Court members closely questioned the figures.

PASSING OF GOOD MANNERS

The accusation is made that men are no longer as courteous to women as they were once. Good manners are out of date, it is said. The change is imputed to the change in woman's status. Since she has left the shelter of the home and engaged in business and public activities, it is not considered needful to show her deference. Men, unashamed, will remain seated in street cars while women stand; they will smoke in mixed society, without so much as asking permission they will speak of girls as "fellows." "She's a good fellow" one will hear them say. Does it mean that the enfranchisement of women, the striking off of the shackles, has killed chivalry? that men cannot be expected to show courtesy to women unless women occupy a subordinate position in society?

It may be that women are themselves partly to blame. Some have lost the respect that formerly was theirs by adopting masculine ways. A few foolish ones dislike to be thought of as "the weaker sex" or "the gentler sex," and on that account discourage the showing of deference to them, thinking it implies that they are not the equals of men. Of course they are not the equals of men in masculine strength, and they should glory in not being the equals of men in coarseness, either.

If there is to be leveling of the sexes it should be effected by raising men's standard of refinement, not by lowering women's. A great man showed perception of this many years ago at a banquet in his honor "Since there are no ladies present," said one of the speakers, "no harm will be done by my telling an indelicate story." "But there are gentlemen present," objected the great man.

HAPPY DAYS

The year 1926 is in the making and already promises to make prosperity history. The nation is at peace with itself and the world. There is a satisfying calm in the relations between capital and labor. Want and unemployment are virtually unknown. There is every reason why the United States should have a prosperous New Year.

Rising stocks and an unprecedented demand for securities promises more money for industrial expansion during the year and offer a guarantee of greater railroad stability. Business industry and commerce are confident of a prosperous year.

Wheat and cattle, copper and cotton are bringing high prices, with happy consequences for the producers. Appeals for aid are no longer heard from the agricultural areas and yet urban folk are not complaining about food costs.

ETIQUETTE

Being polite becomes more difficult. Social blunders lurk on every side.

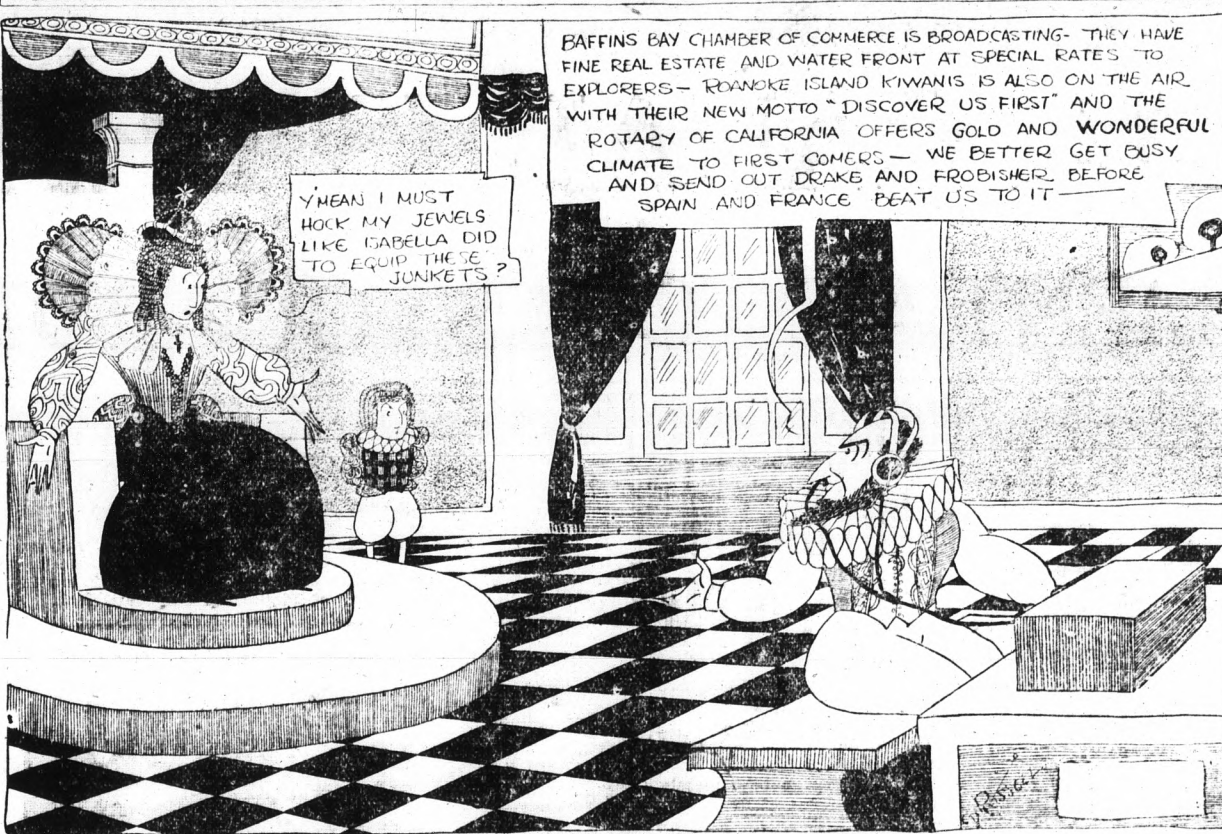

One of the many books on etiquette, which are raining heavily on the public, says it is a serious "boner" for a man, dining in a restaurant to pick a fallen fork from the floor, that function "properly" belonging to the waiter.

It is also set forth that dipping both hands into a fingerbowl simultaneously, instead of one hand at a time, is blunder in the first degree.

Real etiquette is in acting with polite consideration for others, not like a trained monkey.

London doctor says bolshevism is due to bad teeth. We knew there was something loose in their heads.

SYNOPSIS
Bing Carrington finds himself at David Lacy's farmhouse on Long Island. To his amazement he discovers Connemara Moore and her Aunt Celimena also are there. So, too, is Sweetie, a mysterious young woman whom Connie met aboard a yacht. Connemara was to have announced her engagement last night to Bing or Salt Adams—but, instead, stole away from Aunt Celimena's Connecticut home. It was a night of wild adventure for all of them.

"Things have happened so rapidly, so confusingly," began Aunt Celimena, "I don't know which way to turn."

"This way," advised Sweetie, pointing to the hall. "You turn right around this way to go straight upstairs; eyes left. Join me and you won't be seen by the world. Pretty slick, that, eh? I'll have to go it down and sell it to the Marines."

"Tell it to the Marines is the way the saying goes," mumbled Aunt Celimena, following Sweetie to the door.

"I know it but you can't tell the Marines anything, ma'am, and you can sell them the Pacific Ocean."

Left alone with Connemara, Bing at once proceeded to press his suit—or, rather, it was Mr. Merrill's suit, Connie, turning crimson, pushed him away. She had caught a glimpse of Lacy approaching from the hallway.

"Oh, I say, Connie," protested Bing. "We're all alone now. We're engaged, aren't we? Didn't you—"

"We are not engaged," she broke in quickly. Lacy was enter-

"Listen! I swear to you, Connemara, I've been in love with you ever since the day I first saw you. I've—"

ing the room. "I don't know what you are talking about."

"Didn't you send Salt Adams a bunch of your hair, and wasn't that your way of letting me know you bobbed—Great Scott!" For the first time he had observed the blue ribbon bandeau. "You don't mean you're still keeping up that nonsense about covering your hair? It's the silliest thing I've ever—Look here, is it or isn't it?"

She continued to smile at him impishly, one finger patting the blue ribbon more securely in place.

"Connie," Bing began desperately. "I'm asking you to marry me."

"In the presence of witnesses," remarked Lacy dryly.

"The devil!" Bing gasped, whirling.

"The gentleman has just proposed to you," said Lacy, addressing Connie. "It's a question that calls for an answer, yes or no."

"You'll oblige me, sir, by keeping out of this," exploded Bing angrily. "Impossible," said Lacy, without removing his gaze from Connie's lovely face. There was a light in his eyes that could not be misinterpreted. Her own eyes wavered, and he had read something in their shining depths that gave him courage.

"Some other time, Bing," murmured the girl. "Don't hurry me."

"That's all right, old chap," beamed Lacy, slightly exalted. "She's already been through a lot of unpleasant things in the past few hours."

"Yes—let's change the subject," cried Connemara, eagerly and gratefully. "Tell us all about yourself, Bing. Tell me the whole story. Aunt Celimena seems awfully vague about everything."

"We might as well sit down," said Lacy hospitably. He conducted Connemara to a comfortable davenport and sat down beside her.

"Well," began Bing, resignedly, and forthwith related the experiences of the night. He had seated himself in a Morris chair some distance away. At the conclusion of his story he urged Connemara to tell him everything that had happened to her.

She arose. "No, Bing; I will tell it all to you when I have more time. I have work to do now. I must clear myself in Mr. Lacy's eyes. He believes I am mixed up in some way with that gang of smugglers. I cannot rest until I have placed that fifty thousand dollars in Mr. Bob Merrill's hands to be turned over to the government!"

"Fifty thousand what?" gasped Bing, as she started to leave the room.

"Jones," replied Lacy, following her. "I hid the money down on the beach." She explained, hurriedly, "near the house where that funny-looking Bugle lives."

"I'll go with you, Connie," said Bing, springing to his feet. Stupefaction had held him rooted to the chair.

"See here, Carrington," said Lacy, surveying the late arrival with a critical, even pitying air. "You can't go running about in that awful suit of clothes. You're a sight, old man. I'll tell you what. We're about the same size. I'll fit you out with a suit of mine. Come along to my room with me. Don't go yet, please," to Connemara. "I'll be down in a minute or two and we'll go to the beach together while Mr. Carrington is changing his clothes. It's too far for you to walk there and back, so I'll get the roadster. We can park it at the Merrills' and cut through their place to the beach. By the way, you can use my razors too, Carrington, if you like. You certainly need a shave. So don't hurry. Take all the time you like. No doubt you'd like a bath. You—"

"I had a bath last night," said Bing surlily.

"The more the merrier," quoth the sparkling-eyed Lacy, slapping the other on the back. Then, grasping his arm, he hurried him upstairs, but not without a look of appeal to the girl below.

In an incredibly short space of time he rejoined her and they set out for the beach. But it was not until they had left the little green roadster in the Merrills' drive, and were on their way down to the water that either of them spoke.

"I've never forgotten you," Lacy said then, softly and abruptly, out of that long silence. "Ever since the day in Autelur your face has haunted me. I've thought of nothing else. In my dreams—"

"Do you think I belong to the Swede's gang?" she interrupted darkly.

"Good heavens, no! You couldn't! You are an angel. Listen! I swear to you, Connemara, I've been in love with you ever since the day I first saw you. I've—"

"Hush! You mustn't say such things to me."

"You are blushing! And how lovely you are when the color spreads over—Oh, I say! By George! It has just occurred to me that you may think I am mixed up in this smuggling business. For Heaven's sake, you—you don't think that, do you? He stopped short. His eyes were troubled.

"Of course I don't. How stupid of you!"

"Well, then, I repeat, I've been in love with you for months, Connemara. I—I wonder if you remember meeting me over there in France. I don't suppose I made the slightest impression on you then but—"

"I remember you very well," she interrupted demurely. "I have an excellent memory. Will it please you if I say I have never forgotten you, Mr. Lacy?"

He gulped. Then, in rather a daze: "And you are not in love with that chap back there or—or with anyone else?"

She smiled. "Don't hurry me so," she murmured. "Oh," she cried, in sudden confusion, and with no little relief, "there is the beach. Down there is where I hid the money. Come on, Mr. Lacy. We mustn't waste any time."

"I am trying not to," he exclaimed, as he hurried along after her flying figure. "Wait a second! Answer me, Connemara. Do you—do you love me?"

TOM MIX IN SPANISH ROLE AT CALIFORNIA

The company of cowboys that always appears with Tom Mix in his productions found little use for chaps in "The Lucky Horseshoe," his latest release now at the California theatre, for they are cast as the officers of the guard in 17th century Spain and are dressed in leather doublets and silken hose, carrying in place of their trusty revolvers wicked looking halberds in many of the scenes.

But, in spite of the fact that they were out of their western ranch atmosphere they do some marvelous riding, chasing after Tom when he drives away with the lovely Dona Isabella on the very eve of her marriage.

Tom himself does some hair-raising feats on horseback that will thrill everyone in any audience—both at the beginning of the story when he is the foreman of a western ranch and later when he dreams he is Dan Juan and lives up to that well-loved hero's reputation for recklessness in true Mix fashion.

Miss Billie Dove plays opposite Mix in the leading feminine role and J. Farrell MacDonald is his right-hand man on the ranch and Fanchon in his dreams.

Other features on the same program include "Failure" an O. Henry story; "Varieties" the world we live in; International News; Larry Canelo at the organ.

THREE CENTURIES IN PICTURES

Indian, Dutch, English and American New York

THE KNICKERBOCKERS OF WASHINGTON IRVING FAME

A reproduction of one of 150 murals in the Ter-Centenary Exhibit of New York, which will continue until 1926, at Wanamaker's.

JOLLY and placid, given to smoking their long stemmed pipes on stoops of an evening or gathering at the Tavern for a drink of schnapps, these are the Dutchmen whom Washington Irving called Knickerbockers because of "their exceeding large trunk breeches."

New York was New Amsterdam, its population nearer a thousand than six million, when the streets totaled up to seventeen. And famous Wall Street was a log palisade that marked the town's northern limit.

The photo play was adapted from the absorbing novel of the same name by Zane Grey and centers around the glamorous and colorful days of 1876. Lucien Hubbard, who dramatized the story and William K. Howard who directed it have been careful to follow the novel down to its minutest details.

Instead of viewing a plain dotted with cities, ranches and cement roads, the film shows us the west as it was fifty years ago—a vast wilderness, ranged by great herds of buffalo, overrun by wolves, bears and mountain lions and inhabited by fierce, nomadic Indians.

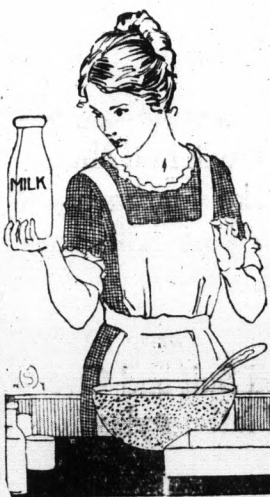

Interwoven with the theme of the story which concerns the long drive that was begun in '76 to the buffalo fields of Wyoming and Montana, is a virile romance, the principals of which are Jack Holt and Lois Wilson. The development of this love affair, which is hindered by Miss Wilson's guardian, Noah Beery and the sufferings and privations of the early settlers provide enough action, drama and suspense for a half a dozen photoplays. The last big Indian attack upon the whites and the exciting stampede of a vast herd of buffalo furnish two of the many dynamic scenes for this epic picture.

Raymond Hatton completes the quartette of featured players. Other features include "Watch Out" a Bobby Vernon comedy; "Felix Busts Into Business" a Felix, the cat, comic.

Thrilling Story In Picture At Richmond Theatre

"The Thundering Herd" which made its bow last night at the Richmond theatre is a mixture of entertainment and instruction, of history and fiction. It has tremendous dramatic value, yet the thrilling incidents it unfolds and the scenes in pictures are based upon facts that are historically true.

The photo play was adapted from the absorbing novel of the same name by Zane Grey and centers around the glamorous and colorful days of 1876. Lucien Hubbard, who dramatized the story and William K. Howard who directed it have been careful to follow the novel down to its minutest details.

Contrary to what we expected for the first few days after the raise in prices, a check of all shops shows the volume of business up to normal.

We wish to thank the public for the generous manner in which they responded to the increased prices. They were the outcome of constant and gradual increase in the cost of operating a shop.

The increase benefits the employee as well as the proprietor.

The Christmas Sentiment of Gift Giving:

How many times, at the beginning of the Holiday Season, do we hear expressions similar to this:
"This Christmas stuff is the bunk; I'm not going to fall for it any more, spending a lot of money for things that people don't want or care about. I'm through!"

BUT, as the greatest of all holidays approaches nearer and nearer, so does the wonderful spirit of Christmas begin once more to permeate our beings and we feverishly begin to buy the gifts we think our friends and dear ones will appreciate. And, oh, the pleasurable afterglow that fills your heart when a child or a friend smiles appreciation of your gift. So, as long as you are going to shop—

SPORTS

BERLENBACH RETAINS HIS BOXING TITLE

NEW MADISON SQUARE GARDENS, Dec. 11.—Ovilia Chapellaine of Canada, commonly known as Jack Delaney misses being light-heavyweight champion of the world at this writing by a margin of action.

It does not always pay to be too cautious in such fancy games as prize fighting.

Ovilia knocked Paul Berlenbach the Astoria Ox and the holder of the title mentioned as flat as a flounder in the fourth round of their battle at New Madison Square Garden to night, with a right hand-chop to the chin.

It was almost exact duplicate of the incident of the same round of their fight at the old garden over a year ago before Berlenbach was champion and when Don Hickey the grizzled manager of the Ox tossed in a towel as Paul got up and reeled with Delaney stalking him set for a final spring.

But tonight there was a slight difference.

Tonight as Berlenbach hit the floor with a heavy thug and the biggest crowd that ever gathered indoors for any purpose was thrilling the blood cry of the human pack he bounced to his feet, his eyes glazed, then immediately dropped to one knee as if in the memory of that other occasion had suddenly crossed his mind.

Wolf Cubs Have Interesting Meet

Scout Troop 2, the Wolf Cubs, met last night at the Boy Scout Clubrooms at Eighth and Ohio. Games were played and a demonstration of first aid was given by the Boy Scout Patrol under patrol leader Glenn Collins. This will be the last meeting until January 6th.

NEW FLATS

J. Andrus will erect a store and flats on Thirty-seventh street between Chandler and Lema avenues, according to a permit issued by Building Inspector E. E. Grow yesterday. The cost will be $3000 and the owner will do the work himself.

Rev. C. R. G. Poole, pastor of the First Baptist church, obtained a permit to erect a $75 garage on Fifth street, between Barrett and Nevil avenues.

He took a short cut—not over three seconds—then got to his feet. He was very unsteady as he lifted his hands. He was still dazed. Then and there Ovilia let a great opportunity to win the title pass.

Instead of stepping in and continuing the work of pugilistic butchery laid on the chopping block before him he took too much time. He leisurely cut at and slashed at Berlenbach's face, the Astoria Ox weaving from side to side. Then the bell rang and with it Delaney's chance.

From that time Berlenbach plodded on to victory, winning by sheer aggressiveness against a man who is his superior in boxing and hitting power.

TROJANS AFTER SAINTS
Although the University of Southern California has been playing rather good football this year against other teams, it leaked out yesterday that the game of the season is that with the Saints today. The Trojans have been pointing for this game and are after the Madigan's crew scalp to wipe out the 11 to 0 defeat administered by St. Mary's last year.

JOHN D. ON LOOKOUT

BOSTON, Dec. 11.—It seems as if John D. Rockefeller was a business man from his earliest days. A story is told here that in 1891 Harvard tried to arrange a football game with Brown for a guarantee of $75 or half the receipt. The Brown manager held out for more money and refused to play. The manager was John D., who wanted the average guarantee of $350.

ANOTHER CLOUD

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—It appears as if the proposed and signed for bout between Dempsey and Willis will never go through. The latest is that South Bend, Ind., where the fight was to have been held, refuses to put up the forfeits. It may be now that Tex Rickard will get ahead of the fight and stage it in New York or New Jersey next September.

SCOTT TO RETIRE

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—Baseball is about to lose one of its most picturesque figures in Everett Scott, Washington infielder, who made a record of playing 1307 consecutive games between 1916 and 1925. He will voluntarily retire, Manager Stanley Harris stated today. Harris also said that Roger Peckenpaugh will be back.

High Cagers Will Play Pullman

Monday night at 7:30, the Richmond high school cagers will meet the Pullman team at the high school gymnasium. This promises to be a good game as the Pullman's have a strong team and at the present time are second in the Industrial League.

Evidently Coach Hill is giving his team some stiff work-out preparatory to the stiff season that faces it next year.

BERKELEY-SALINAS READY

The Yellow Jackets of Berkeley will attempt to sting the Crows of Salinas at Berkeley Memorial stadium this afternoon for the North Coast championship in the California Interscholastic Federation. Six hundred rooters will come from Salinas. It is about a toss up as to which is the best team although Berkeley has a little of the edge.

TUNNEY TO FIGHT

TAMPA, Fla., Dec. 11.—Light-heavyweight champion Gene Tunney has signed to box for Harry McCormick in St. Petersburg, Fla., on December 28 for the championship. McCormick said that the opponent for the champ has not been selected. Negotiations are also to be under way for matches for Tunney at Tampa and Miami.

TWO FORFEITS AND TWO GAMES IN Y. LEAGUE

Y. M. C. A. VOLLEYBALL

Wanderers	4	0	1000
Christian	3	1	750
Baptist No. 1	2	2	500
Wesley	1	3	250
Baptist No. 2	1	3	250
St. Edmund's	1	3	250
Presbyterian	0	4	900

Two hot sets of volleyball games were held off in the Y. M. C. A. league last night and two more were won by forfeiture. The old time luck of the Y. M. C. A. seems to be holding as for the past two weeks they have not had to play a game. Baptists No. 2 handed them their right to remain in first position on a platter last night. The Wesleyans forfeited to St. Edmund's.

The games that were played though, provided excitement enough to make up for the unfilled schedule. In the first game the Wanderers and the Baptists battled. The Wanderers held onto first place by defeating their opponents 15 to 2, 14 to 15, and 15 to 7.

Another hot game was that between the Christians and the Presbyterians. The Presbys tried with all their might to get out of the cellar, but they were not strong enough for their masher opponents. They took the second game of the set by a score of 19 to 3, and only lost the other two by scores of 5 to 14.
